

Leadership:-

- Leadership is basically how influential you are on others that would bring change/growth to any organization.

The seven great leadership traits are:

1- Leaders radiate positive energy:

Derive the passion towards success. It boosts people's morale ultimately leading towards productivity.

2- Leaders have proactive attitude:

They don't blame the people in their surrounding rather if any problem arises they tend to solve the problem. They take charge. They know where to focus.

3- Leaders delegate tasks completely:

They focus or take control of the difficult tasks and delegate (giving the charge, trust them to get the job done) the rest to others.

4- Leaders are approachable:

Whenever the members of the team need to discuss anything, the leader is always available. Great leaders encourage feedback if not it would be a non-productive environment and employees won't give their job.

5- Leaders do what they expect from others:

If you expect your team to work hard and produce great results, you need to do the same. A great leader sets an example and as a result gains respect of his/her entire team.

6- Leaders are accountable:

Leadership is not just about responsibilities, its about taking the next step right to make things right.

7- Leaders are decisive:

Leaders take decisions with confidence. Their job is not always to make the right decisions but to take a decision.

Levels of Leadership: -

Level #1: Position Level: (Manager, CEO, Supervisor, owner)
People follow you because they have to fear of getting fired. (No influence, only power).

Level #2: Permission Level:

You build relationship with your team, you listen well, observe well, keep learning and you have the attitude of serving.
